Nomura Receives Administrative Order from Financial Services Agency

Tokyo, July 3, 2008 Nomura Securities Co., Ltd. today received an administrative order asking for business improvement from Japan's Financial Services Agency (FSA) as outlined below in relation to insider trading carried out by a former employee.

Nomura takes this administrative order seriously and remains committed to further strengthening its internal controls to prevent such incidents from occurring in the future and to restore the trust of its clients and the market.

On the advice of an independent committee set up by the company's Board of Directors to investigate the handling of non-public information, Nomura has started implementing measures to ensure more stringent handling of deal-related information and improve its human resources management and employee training initiatives. Nomura will report in writing to FSA about the measures to be taken.

Outline of the Administrative Order:

1. Due to the increased scope and ongoing globalization of financial services, the range of people working in the industry is becoming increasingly diverse. The company must build an effective internal control system that takes a broad-based approach encompassing training, human resource management, code of conduct, and internal regulations and controls to ensure each employee fully understands their responsibilities for compliance (with laws and regulations, etc). In addition, the company must establish the necessary structure to maintain and improve its internal control system in order to address the further diversification of its operations, increased globalization, and changes in the market environment.
2. The company must undertake a systematic review and update of its regulations for internal controls related to the handling of sensitive corporate and institutional client information, taking into account the effectiveness of such regulations, and keep all directors, officers and employees informed. The company must also check and confirm whether, upon design, development, and operations of information management and IT systems, such systems are in compliance with these regulations, and are consistent with business realities and risk characteristics. Any necessary measures must be taken in respect thereof.
