Highlights (unaudited)

The Fund benefited from strong industry selection, highlighted by positioning in emerging market sovereign bonds and overweights to the cable & satellite, healthcare & pharmaceuticals, and media & entertainment industries.

Overall issue selection also positively contributed to results, principally within the electric utilities, retail & restaurant, and capital goods industries. Bond selection within telecom also boosted returns.

Despite benefitting from individual issue selection in the retail & restaurant sector, from an industry perspective, an overweight to this sector was the largest detractor from returns. An overweight to aerospace & defense, coupled with an underweight to financials, also detracted.

Issue selection within midstream energy, building materials & home construction, and aerospace & defense all hurt performance.

The views expressed in this report and information about the Fund's portfolio holdings are for the period covered by this report and are subject to change thereafter.

The accompanying financial statements as of January 31, 2019 were not audited and, accordingly, no auditor's opinion is expressed on them.

Strategy and Performance Overview (unaudited)

How did the Fund perform?

For the six-month reporting period that ended January 31, 2019, the PGIM Global High Yield Fund, Inc. returned 5.40% based on market price and 1.71% based on net asset value (NAV). For the same period, the Bloomberg Barclays Global High Yield Ba/B 1-5 Year 1% Issuer Constrained Index (the Index) returned 1.94%, and the Lipper Closed End High Yield Leveraged Funds Average returned 0.24%. All Fund returns reflect reinvestment of dividends.

What were conditions like in the short-term global high yield corporate bond market?

The short-duration, higher-quality sub-style of global high yield bonds, as measured by the Index (dollar hedged), returned 1.94% for the period, outperforming the global broad high yield market. Duration is a measure of a bond's price sensitivity to interest rate changes over time.

Prior to the last month in the reporting period, global high yield bonds were shaping up to finish in negative territory from a total return perspective, as an escalating US-China trade war, several profit warnings at the individual credit level, and concerns over further rate hikes by the Federal Reserve (the Fed) pushed spreads wider for the asset class. Total returns for the Bloomberg Barclays Global High Yield Index, the measure for the broad global high yield debt market, were negative in four out of the first five months of the period. However, in January 2019 sentiment improved substantially on the back of a strong jobs report, the Fed's dovish narrative, and increasing oil and equity prices amid optimism regarding US-China trade talks. The Index rallied sharply in January, more than offsetting the negative returns through the first five months of the period. From an industry perspective the top performers during the period were healthcare, electric utilities, cable, and air transportation. The worst-performing industries were energy, aerospace, and automotive. The option-adjusted spread on the Index widened 73 basis points (bps) for the period, closing at +454 bps. One basis point is 0.01%.

Across the regional components of the Index, the emerging markets component significantly outperformed the broader index by about 165 basis points. Both the US and European high yield corporate components lagged, returning +1.08% and +0.09%, respectively. This theme was consistent with the performance of the shorter-duration, higher-quality sleeve of the global high yield market. (All returns are US-dollar hedged, Source: Bloomberg Barclays.)

What worked?

The Fund benefited from strong industry selection, highlighted by positioning in emerging market sovereign bonds and overweights to the cable & satellite, healthcare & pharmaceuticals, and media & entertainment industries.

8 Visit our website at pgiminvestments.com

Overall issue selection also positively contributed to results, principally within the electric utilities, retail & restaurant, and capital goods industries. Bond selection within telecom also boosted returns.

A few of the largest single credit contributors to returns included positioning within Cooperative Muratori, NRG Energy Inc., and the Republic of Turkey.

What didn't work?

Despite benefitting from individual issue selection in the retail & restaurant sector, from an industry perspective, an overweight to this sector was the largest detractor from returns. An overweight to aerospace & defense, coupled with an underweight to financials, also detracted.

Issue selection within midstream energy, building materials & home construction, and aerospace & defense all hurt performance.

A few of the largest single name positions which limited results over the period were High Mesa Holdings LP, Ferrellgas Partners LP, Bombardier Inc., and Galapagos NV.

How did the Fund's borrowing (leverage) strategy affect its performance and distributions?

The Fund's use of leverage contributed positively to NAV performance and shareholder distributions, as both the returns and income earned on the securities purchased exceeded the cost of borrowing.

As of January 31, 2019, the Fund had borrowed $263 million and was about 28.7% leveraged. During the reporting period, the average amount of leverage utilized by the Fund was about 29%.

Did the Fund have exposure to derivatives, and how did they affect performance?

Derivatives in the form of forward currency exchange contracts were used to hedge against the Fund's positions not denominated in US dollars. Changes in the value of non-dollar bonds due to currency fluctuations were offset by the derivative positions, so the use of foreign currency exchange contracts had a minimal effect on performance on a net basis.

Current outlook

A combination of solid fundamentals (strong earnings and low defaults), favorable supply technicals, and a belief that near-term risks (US-China trade war, Fed tightening, Brexit, and Italian budget concerns) are priced into the market, thus paving the way for a relief rally in early 2019, leaves PGIM Fixed income modestly constructive on global high yield in the near term. Longer-term concerns over slowing economic growth have been offset by the meaningful spread widening late in 2018 and makes the risk-reward profile within global high yield seem more symmetrical than it was in the third quarter of 2018. Indeed, the resolution of some of the aforementioned risks could be a catalyst for significant spread tightening and large excess returns in 2019, in PGIM Fixed Income's view. And while a recession (or the increased probability of one) could prompt additional significant spread widening, at least the upside/downside dynamic is currently more balanced. In general, PGIM Fixed Income expects defaults to remain low in 2019. In terms of positioning, PGIM Fixed Income favors single-B issuers, remains cautious on commodities, and maintains overweights to independent power producers and US consumer-related issuers.

Were there any material changes to the Fund's management?

There were no changes during the reporting period. However, on March 7, 2019, the Board of Directors approved a change to a non-fundamental investment policy to permit the Fund to invest, under normal market conditions, in instruments of any duration or maturity and to remove the limit on investments in high yield instruments rated in the lower rating categories (Caa1 or lower by Moody's, CCC+ or lower by S&P or Fitch, or comparably rated by another NRSRO). The Board of Directors also approved to change the name of the Fund to PGIM Global High Yield Fund, Inc. and to change the Fund's benchmark to the Bloomberg Barclays Global High Yield 2% Issuer Constrained (USD Hedged) Index. Fund management believes that the Bloomberg Barclays Global High Yield 2% Issuer Constrained (USD Hedged) Index is more relevant due to the change in the Fund's investment policy. As a result of the policy change, the Fund has increased its monthly shareholder distribution to $0.1000 from $0.0825 beginning in March 2019. Effects of the change in policy are not reflected in financial statements ended January 31, 2019.
