LETTER TO THE SHAREHOLDERS

July 28, 2004

Dear Shareholder,

So far in 2004, the German equity market has been one of the beneficiaries of global economic growth, which gave a boost to German exports; exports rose by more than 4% in the first quarter of 2004. The current global upswing is characterized by strong demand for capital goods, which make up a much larger share of German exports than those of the country's surrounding Euroland neighbors. Furthermore, German companies have considerably increased their competitiveness due to a moderate wage policy and cutbacks in employment over the last few years. However, strong export growth has not yet led to higher employment and higher domestic demand. But large German companies are increasingly less dependent on the domestic economy. Even classic domestic plays such as retail and utilities generate an increasing proportion of their revenues abroad. Year to date, the German economy made modest progress in its gradual recovery. In the second quarter of 2004, German gross domestic product (GDP) rose 2% on an annualized basis, despite disappointing domestic growth. In June, investor confidence rose for the first time in six months and the International Monetary Fund (IMF) raised its forecast for Germany's economic growth in 2004 to 1.8% from 1.6%.* It also revised its forecast of Germany's GDP to about 2% in 2005.*

After a weak first quarter, the German markets held up well in the second quarter, with the DAX increasing in strength relative to its peers.

For the six months ended June 30, 2004, the net asset value per share of The Germany Fund declined 4.0%, and its share price decreased 6.0%, while the fund's benchmark, the DAX, decreased by 1.3% in US dollar terms during the same period. Past performance is no guarantee of future results. Please see page 2 for the fund's standardized performance as of June 30, 2004.

The fund's underperformance relative to its benchmark stems largely from overweight positions in Deutsche Lufthansa and Infineon Technologies. In addition to the burden of the high oil price, Deutsche Lufthansa's unexpected announcement of a capital increase was not received well by the market, and the stock price declined during the second quarter. Infineon Technologies underperformed the DAX over the same period, despite the fact that its second-quarter results beat analysts' estimates.

Contributors to performance included select utilities, which were not only in favor due to increased market interest in traditionally defensive sectors, but also because many companies were able to pass on higher electricity prices more quickly than expected and therefore beat market expectations. In the second quarter, we increased our position in the sector by adding to our overweight position in E.ON. Additional contributions came from BASF and Bayer; after a disappointing first-quarter performance from chemicals companies such as BASF and Bayer, both companies outperformed the DAX in the second quarter due to the improvement in the economy. Also, the German automotive supplier Continental once more beat market estimates and the stock continued its strong performance; its overweight position in the second quarter contributed positively to the fund's performance.

The Germany Fund continued its open-market purchases of its shares, buying 518,250 shares during the first six months of 2004. The fund's discount to its net asset value averaged 11.96% during this period.

At its April 23, 2004 Board Meeting, the Board of Directors elected Sandra M. Schaufler as new Chief Investment Officer of your Fund. Located in New York, Ms. Schaufler will be working closely with the Fund's investment adviser, Deutsche Asset Management International GmbH in Frankfurt. At its July 12, 2004 Board Meeting, the Board of Directors elected Julian Sluyters as the new President and Chief Executive Officer of your Fund.

*Source: IMF June 2004. The IMF is optimistic that strong external demand will lead to higher investments and employment and will eventually stimulate domestic consumption.

Sincerely,

/S/Christian Strenger ----- Christian Strenger Chairman	/S/Julian Sluyters ----- Julian Sluyters President

Investing in foreign securities presents certain unique risks not associated with domestic investments, such as currency fluctuation and political and economic changes and market risks. This may result in greater share price volatility.

Shares of closed-end funds frequently trade at a discount to net asset value. The price of the Fund's shares is determined by a number of factors, several of which are beyond the control of the Fund. Therefore, the Fund cannot predict whether its shares will trade at, below or above net asset value.

INTERVIEW WITH THE CHIEF INVESTMENT OFFICER

QUESTION: In 2002, the capital gains tax exemption for corporate shareholdings went into effect, but it has gained momentum only over the last year. Will you give us an update on the recent restructuring activity and its impact on the German equity market?

ANSWER: The capital gains tax exemption for corporate shareholdings proposed in December 1999, approved in July 2000, and effective since 1 January 2002, was expected to significantly reduce corporate shareholdings in Germany. Unfortunately, the decline in equity markets until early 2003 resulted in little demand for any placements of shares on the equity market. The depressed market also significantly reduced unrealized capital gains and thereby the incentive to sell. The disposal process therefore proceeded slowly until mid-2003. Following the start of the equity market rebound in March 2003, investors first had to digest several rights issues aimed at balance-sheet repair. As share prices rose, the readiness of stake owners to sell their holdings also increased. In late 2003 and early 2004, with the equity market more positive, there finally was scope for the placement of corporate stakes. The latest example is that of RWE disposing of its stakes in Hochtief and HeidelbergCement. Among financials, the disentanglement of the closely meshed web of corporate shareholdings continued. German corporations have made progress in unwinding cross shareholdings over the past three to four years.

QUESTION: Germany has shown strong export growth figures during the last few quarters. However, this rise did not translate into higher employment or a strengthening of domestic demand. Is strong export growth less of a stimulus for the domestic economy than it was in earlier cycles?

ANSWER: Germany was the largest exporter worldwide in 2003 (in USD terms), followed by the United States, Japan and China. While much of the increase is due to the euro appreciation, it shows as well that German companies can hold their own in international competition. In contrast to earlier cycles, however, strong export growth has not yet led to higher employment and higher domestic demand. This raises the question of whether the lack of the traditional positive spillover effect of increased exports (then boosting the economy) is due to permanent structural changes or whether it is a temporary phenomenon. German products' strong competitiveness abroad is at least in part due to outsourcing abroad. Since 2000, direct investment worth 114 billion euro has gone abroad. The proportion destined for Central and Eastern Europe rose to more than 20% in 2003. This means that part of the German value-creation chain was outsourced abroad in order to maintain and increase international competitiveness by cutting labor costs.

QUESTION: At the beginning of July, two events took place that were intended to positively influence the German economy but angered German labor unions. Will you discuss these developments?

ANSWER: First, at the beginning of July, Germany's upper house of parliament passed a law reducing long-term jobless benefits, which will take effect in January 2005. This marks the first reduction in benefits since World War II, saving the government an estimated 2.5 billion euro per year. Under the new rules for long-term employment benefits, claimants will have to draw on private wealth, retirement savings and property owned by a spouse before becoming eligible for state benefits. With more than 2.5 million long-term unemployed people currently in Germany, the government's welfare rolls have become bloated. According to the German Economics and Labor minister, Wolfgang Clement, this reform will help to move jobless people more efficiently and swiftly into employment. Second, Siemens and IG Metall, the metalworkers' trade union, agreed recently to reintroduce the 40-hour work week (from 35 hours) in two Siemens plants without extra pay. Industry media suggests that if this agreement had not been reached, Siemens would probably have moved many of the jobs to Hungary. The longer work hours at Siemens are actually equivalent to a 12.5% cut in hourly wages for the employees, which shows the extent to which the trade unions' negotiating power has eroded. Trade unions lack the means to prevent companies from moving jobs abroad, and fears of unemployment have weakened union members' willingness to fight. German companies are trying to slash labor costs or increase output per employee in order to weather strong international competition. Overall, the longer working hours without extra pay as well as the reduction in welfare benefits are a favorable development for Germany.

REPORT FROM THE INVESTMENT ADVISER AND MANAGER

ECONOMIC OUTLOOK

Thus far in 2004, the German economy made modest progress in its gradual recovery. Second quarter real gross domestic product, or GDP, expanded at an annualized rate of 2%. This was the strongest rate of growth in three years and was exclusively driven by net exports. As world trade picked up considerably over the last few quarters, demand for German exports increased. In particular, the share of German exports to Eastern Europe amounted to almost 14% of total exports--a significant component of global demand. Additionally, strong worldwide demand for capital goods also benefited German exports. According to countless industry studies referenced recently in the media, German companies significantly increased their imports of intermediate goods used for exports in order to keep a lid on wage costs. Thus, the link between German exports and domestic demand has become weaker than in previous years.

The fiscal situation looks set to remain difficult. In fact, in our opinion the German budget deficit is likely to stay above 3% of GDP both this year and next, so Germany could violate the Stability and Growth Pact for the fourth year in a row in 2005. While the structural deficit will probably be reduced, in our view, the growth environment could remain too weak for a significant increase in tax revenues. As a result, the government might have to cut subsidies further to rescue the budget deficit in the next few years, as Germany has agreed to reduce its deficit to below 3% of GDP by 2005 at the latest. High oil prices and the increase in indirect taxes led to a pronounced acceleration in German inflation in the last few months to 1.8%. However, the domestically driven price trend is still subdued. In 2005, the significant output gap, moderate wage increases and a strong euro could, in our opinion, lead to a reduction in the German Consumer price Index. After having toyed with the idea of lowering rates earlier this year, the European Central Bank is now taking a strictly neutral stance due to the clearer signs that recovery is under way.

THE GERMANY FUND, INC.
NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS -- JUNE 30, 2004 (UNAUDITED)

NOTE 1. ACCOUNTING POLICIES

The Germany Fund, Inc. (the "Fund") was incorporated in Delaware on April 8, 1986 as a diversified, closed-end management investment company. Investment operations commenced on July 23, 1986. The Fund reincorporated in Maryland on August 29, 1990 and on October 16, 1996 the Fund changed from a diversified to a non-diversified company.

The following is a summary of significant accounting policies followed by the Fund in the preparation of its financial statements. The preparation of financial statements in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

SECURITY VALUATION: Investments are stated at value. All securities for which market quotations are readily available are valued at the last sales price on the primary exchange on which they are traded prior to the time of valuation. If no sales price is available at that time, and both bid and ask prices are available, the securities are valued at the mean between the last current bid and ask prices; if no quoted asked prices are available, they are valued at the last quoted bid price. All securities for which market quotations are not readily available will be valued as determined in good faith by the Board of Directors of the Fund. The Fund calculates its net asset value per share at 11:30 A.M., New York time, in order to minimize the possibility that events occurring after the close of the securities exchanges on which the Fund's portfolio securities principally trade would require adjustment to the closing market prices in order to reflect fair value.

SECURITIES TRANSACTIONS AND INVESTMENT INCOME: Securities transactions are recorded on the trade date. Cost of securities sold is calculated using the identified cost method. Dividend income is recorded on the ex-dividend date and interest income is recorded on an accrual basis. Such dividend income is recorded net of unrecoverable foreign withholding tax.

LOANS OF PORTFOLIO SECURITIES: The Fund may lend portfolio securities while it continues to earn dividends on such securities loaned. The market value of government securities received as collateral is required to be at least equal to 105 percent of the market value of the securities loaned, which are marked-to-market daily. Securities lending fees, net of rebates and agency fees, are earned by the Fund and are identified separately in the Statement of Operations.

FOREIGN CURRENCY TRANSLATION: The books and records of the Fund are maintained in United States dollars.

Assets and liabilities denominated in euros and other foreign currency amounts are translated into United States dollars at the 10:00 A.M. mid-point of the buying and selling spot rates quoted by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Purchases and sales of investment securities, income and expenses are reported at the rate of exchange prevailing on the respective dates of such transactions. The resultant gains and losses arising from exchange rate fluctuations are identified separately in the Statement of Operations, except for such amounts attributable to investments which are included in net realized and unrealized gains and losses on investments.

Foreign investments may involve certain considerations and risks not typically associated with those of domestic origin as a result of, among others, the possibility of political and economic developments and the level of governmental supervision and regulation of foreign securities markets.

CONTINGENCIES: In the normal course of business, the Fund may enter into contracts that contain a variety of representations which provide general indemnifications. The Fund's maximum exposure under these arrangements is unknown as this would involve future claims that may be made against the Fund that have not yet occurred. However, based on experience, the Fund expects the risk of loss to be remote.

TAXES: No provision has been made for United States Federal income tax because the Fund intends to meet the requirements of the United States Internal Revenue Code applicable to regulated investment companies and to distribute all of its taxable income to shareholders.

DIVIDENDS AND DISTRIBUTIONS TO SHAREHOLDERS: The Fund records dividends and distributions to its shareholders on the ex-dividend date. Income and capital gain distributions are determined in accordance with United States Federal income tax regulations which may differ from accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. These differences, which could be temporary or permanent in nature, may result in reclassification of distributions; however, net investment income, net realized gains and net assets are not affected.

At December 31, 2003, the Fund's components of distributable earnings (accumulated losses) on a tax-basis were as follows:

Undistributed ordinary income*	$ 532,828
Capital loss carryforward	$(53,510,000)
Net unrealized appreciation	$ 28,711,087

*For tax purposes short-term capital gains are considered ordinary income.

The Fund has a Management Agreement with Deutsche Bank Securities Inc. (the "Manager"), and an Investment Advisory Agreement with Deutsche Asset Management International GmbH (the "Investment Adviser"). The Manager and the Investment Adviser are affiliated companies.

The Manager also provides office facilities and certain administrative, clerical and bookkeeping services for the Fund. Pursuant to the Investment Advisory Agreement, the Investment Adviser, in accordance with the Fund's stated investment objectives, policies and restrictions, makes recommendations to the Manager with respect to the Fund's investments and, upon instructions given by the Manager as to suitable securities for investment by the Fund, transmits purchase and sale orders, and selects brokers and dealers to execute portfolio transactions on behalf of the Fund.

++ Total investment return based on market value is calculated assuming that shares of the Fund's common stock were purchased at the closing market price as of the beginning of the year, dividends, capital gains and other distributions were reinvested as provided for in the Fund's dividend reinvestment plan and then sold at the closing market price per share on the last day of the year. The computation does not reflect any sales commission investors may incur in purchasing or selling shares of the Fund. The total investment return based on the net asset value is similarly computed except that the Fund's net asset value is substituted for the closing market value.

* The custody credits are attributable to interest earned on U.S. cash balances. The ratio of total expenses after custody credits to average net assets are 1.45%, 1.77%, 1.63%, 1.46%, 1.27% and 1.25% for 2004, 2003, 2002, 2001, 2000 and 1999, respectively.

 Annualized.

 Not Annualized.

* Not Annualized. The ratio for six months ended June 30, 2004 has not been annualized since the Fund believes it would not be appropriate because the Fund's dividend income is not earned ratably throughout the fiscal year.
