Delivering Superior Shareholder Value Executing a Higher Growth, Higher Value Strategy Changing market dynamics for kid's apparel, coupled with historical under investment and failure to adapt, meant The Children's Place needed a new strategy for success Successfully executing a long-term strategic plan to transform The Children's Place from a low-growth, North American mall-based specialty children's apparel retailer to a leading global, omni-channel children's apparel brand Tangible results achieved in 2014 with differentiated performance vs peers and growing momentum Strong operational momentum; on track to deliver positive results in 2015 from the strategy transformation, consistent with our commitment communicated to shareholders New Leadership Has Delivered Results for the Shareholders 117% total shareholder return under current management, outperforming S&P 500 and specialty retail peers¹ Approximately $493 million of total capital returned to shareholders since the Board authorized the capital return program in 2009 Track record of creating shareholder value while in the middle of a strategic transformation, and despite strong headwinds facing specialty retailers and children's apparel companies Strong, Independent Board, with a Track Record of Responding to Shareholder Feedback Highly engaged, independent Directors with diverse knowledge and experience relevant to our business All directors except the CEO, Jane Elfers, are independent Fresh perspectives with five new Directors added to the Board since 2011, including two in 2014 Strong, enhanced governance and executive compensation policies designed to ensure management accountability and alignment with shareholders ¹ Total Shareholder return for time period 12/10/2009 – 04/14/2015. Driving a Transformation, Delivering Results 4 Executing a clearly defined transformation strategy to continue to drive shareholder value Outperformed the market and peers since Jane Elfers was announced, and growing momentum for continued outperformance Stock is currently near an eight-year high, reflecting market's recognition of the progress made Engaged and independent board, with track record of adding new perspectives Best-in-class management team in place to deliver on our strategy for shareholders

In 2010, Children's Place Announced a New Strategy that Was Well Received by the Marketplace 7 "After meeting new president and CEO Jane Elfers, we have a higher degree of confidence PLCE can further penetrate the children's value apparel market. Ms. Elfers's cross functional style of managing and belief in communication and collaboration, with robust systems support, signals a positive inflection point." - Susquehanna, March 22, 2010 "PLCE's new CEO, Jane Elfers, has brought in a new team, accurately diagnosed the problems confronting PLCE and sequenced her initiatives to maximize execution and the probability of success." - Morgan Stanley, October 26, 2010 "As it begins 2010 with its new CEO Jane Elfers, we think PLCE can regain greater consistency in sales and earnings performance, with plenty of operating margin improvement potential over the next several years by reining in inventory, allocating it better and making some refinements to its merchandising. We heard more about these initiatives when we met the new CEO at a meeting held for the sellside on 3/19, which reinforced our positive view of the margin opportunity at PLCE and longer-term growth potential once her initial strategies are implemented." - Caris & Company, March 22, 2010 "Since her arrival in early January, we have been impressed by actions taken by Elfers to improve the firm's operating performance including limiting liquidations at the outlets and actions taken to sharpen the brand's value messaging with regard to Easter dressy." - Sterne Agee, March 10, 2010

Strategic Transformation and Continued Operating Momentum Positions The Children's Place for Success 20 "For longer-term investors that can look into the 2H of 2015 and 2016, we do see a pathway to margin expansion from mid-single digits into the mid-to-high single digit zone over the next couple of years. We remain attracted to self-help driven, systems-based retail recoveries, especially when coupled with fleet rationalization and investments in next-gen platforms including e-com and mobile." - Piper Jaffray, February 18, 2015 "While margins remain compressed near term, Place is poised to drive significant GM upside in 2H15. The new SAP system will optimize inventory buys, and management has purchased units down HSD for the 2015 Back to School period, which should alleviate markdown pressure and drive higher average unit retail (AUR)." - Bank of America, March 12, 2015 "Longer term story remains compelling, with numerous initiatives starting to play out - systems, wholesale, international, outlet, newborn. - Oppenheimer, March 1, 2015

Macellum & Barington's Platform is Based on Misrepresentations and Misleading Analyses 30 The Facts Macellum & Barington Myths xThe Company has made merchandising mistakes Company developed long-term strategic plan to transform the Company into a leading global, omni-channel children's apparel brand Strong product offerings have been consistently well received by customers, evidenced by the Company's ability to maintain the #1 market share in specialty children's apparel retailing every year since 2010 Developed contemporary sourcing strategy to address significant changes that were occurring globally xPoor capital allocation Continue to reward shareholders through capital return in the form of a dividend and share repurchase Returned $493mm to shareholders since the Board authorized the capital return program in 2009 Strategic in use of capital, making significant investments in business systems On track with investments and have delivered on all major milestones on schedule xCompany failed to deliver on inventory promise Analysis does not take into account the change in inventory accounting methodology, in 2012 the Company changed from retail to cost method Strategic shift in product mix to higher concentration of basics also contributed to increase in inventory Finally, from 2010 to 2014, $37mm of $58mm inventory increase is due to an increase in in-transit inventory associated with navigating through the West Coast port strike

Macellum & Barington's Platform is Based on Misrepresentations and Misleading Analyses 31 The Facts Macellum & Barington Myths

- ×High management turnover When Jane joined, the Company lacked effective leadership, had no guiding strategy, and inventory management, financial systems and supply chain technologies were abysmal or simply did not exist Since then, Jane and her team have led a remarkable and ongoing transformation. This required a significant upgrade to personnel throughout the organization, which Jane led very effectively We are pleased with our leadership, we believe we have the right people in place to continue driving success
- ×Excessive CEO compensation In fiscal 2014, 84% of CEO's total compensation was performance-based In line with the CEO compensation of Peer Group, ranking in the 52nd percentile (compared to 2013 proxy peer group CEO total compensation), while TSR for fiscal 2014 was in the 80th percentile Extensive engagement has resulted in a compensation program based upon shareholder feedback
- ×The Company moved its annual meeting to limit time available to shareholders Did not move the date of our annual meeting up two weeks. Rather, we scheduled our 2015 Annual Meeting of Shareholders within our typical window (over the last 5 years, our annual meeting has taken place on varying dates between May 20 and June 13) Importantly, when we announced our annual meeting date for 2015, we ensured that shareholders had a full 15 day period within which to nominate directors, versus the 10-day period in our bylaws

In addition, Macellum & Barington's Preliminary Proxy Is Inaccurate 32 ×Jane Elfers' total compensation over the last three years was $42.6 million False; the aggregate compensation listed for Ms. Elfers (the $42.6 million referenced) covers a four-year period, not a three-year period Fails to reference substantial engagement by the Company's board and the foundation of the current compensation policy on shareholder feedback ×Attempted to work constructively with the Company to avoid a proxy contest Macellum & Barington failed to engage in any substantive manner prior to the release of an aggressively worded letter on March 11, 2015 Provided no evidence of their attempt to "work constructively" with the Company ×Based on their analysis, the Company can more than double its EPS within the next three years Misleading and wholly unsubstantiated ×The Company is accelerating store growth The Company has closed 147 stores and has announced its intention to close an additional 124 stores through 2017

In addition, Macellum & Barington's Preliminary Proxy Is Inaccurate 33 ×Since 2010, the Company is on its fourth CFO Although factually correct, it is a misleading statement The incumbent CFO was replaced upon Ms. Elfers' appointment as CEO and its newest CFO, Anurup Pruthi, was appointed upon the promotion of the Company's former CFO, Michael Scarpa, to Chief Operating Officer, a role he continues to serve ×Jane Elfers' has steadily sold much of the stock she has been awarded Ms. Elfers maintains a large ownership position in The Children's Place, with over 1.1% of the outstanding stock, and her compensation is closely aligned with the Company's performance and shareholder interests Other than to cover taxes related to vesting equity in the Company, Ms. Elfers has sold shares only once. Currently, Ms. Elfers holds 76% of shares granted, net of any sales to cover taxes ×Jane Elfers inherited a strong Company False; many aspects of the Company were in disarray when Jane joined. The Company lacked effective leadership, had no guiding strategy, and inventory management, financial systems and supply chain technologies were abysmal or simply did not exist Since, Jane and her team have led a remarkable and ongoing transformation of The Children's Place to make us into a leading, omni-channel children's apparel brand
