Northeast Securities, Inc. ("Northeast") is deemed to be a beneficial owner for purpose of Rule 13(d) since it has shared power to make decisions whether to retain or dispose of the securities of many unrelated clients. Although Northeast does possess the limited power to vote the Issuer's securities on certain normal course matters (election of directors and ratification of auditors), as a matter of practice it does not exercise that right.

Certain of Northeast's officers, directors and employees own securities of the Issuer. Those shares are included in the foregoing calculations. The foregoing calculations do not include (a) warrants to purchase the Issuer's securities, received as partial compensation for acting as a placement agent for the Issuer and which were dispersed to Northeast's employees that Northeast does not control and (b) approximately 300,000 shares of the Issuer's securities owned by a partnership that is not controlled by Northeast,
