KEYCORP COMMENCES CAPITAL RAISE OF $750 MILLION

CLEVELAND, May 11, 2009 KeyCorp (NYSE: KEY) today announced that it plans to sell up to $750 million aggregate principal amount of its common shares in a so-called at the market offering and has filed a prospectus supplement to its existing automatic shelf registration statement on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission in connection with the offering.

Today's announcement was the first leg of KeyCorp's action plan for increasing its Tier 1 common equity capital following the announcement on May 7, 2009, that KeyCorp needed to increase its Tier 1 common equity by $1.8 billion in order to satisfy the requirements of the federal government's Supervisory Capital Assessment Program or stress test under which the regulators are requiring the tested bank holding companies to hold additional capital buffers against a more adverse than expected macroeconomic scenario were it to become a reality. KeyCorp has named Morgan Stanley as its sales agent in connection with the offering.

The widely-reported government stress tests of the largest 19 U.S. bank holding companies were, according to the government, a what-if exercise to determine appropriate levels of capital for a worse than anticipated economic environment. Although KeyCorp meets the regulatory requirements for being well-capitalized today, and holds capital significantly in excess of all required regulatory measures, under the what-if scenario of a much harsher economic environment, the stress test determined that Key would be best served by raising the level of its Tier 1 common equity by $1.8 billion.

KeyCorp reported that additional actions are also contemplated, including possibly public and/or private transactions in which certain currently outstanding Tier 1 capital instruments are exchanged for common shares, a move that would further enhance KeyCorp's Tier 1 common equity.

KeyCorp also noted that the government's pre-provision earnings scenarios used under the more adverse than expected scenario were extremely conservative and below KeyCorp's own internal expectation, and that an economic environment that is better than the tested scenario would likely yield additional capital generation through earnings. Cleveland-based KeyCorp is one of the nation's largest bank-based financial services companies, with assets of approximately $97 billion. BusinessWeek Magazine named Key the top bank in its Customer Service Champ 2009 edition, ranking Key 11th out of the top-25 companies that include many known for their customer service acumen. Key companies provide investment management, retail and commercial banking, consumer finance, and investment banking products and services to individuals and companies throughout the United States and, for certain businesses, internationally.
